New faces, talents in orthopedic care

J.C. Clark, M.D. and Suleman Hussain, M.D. join ORA Orthopedics

BETTENDORF, Iowa (August 2010) – Two new sports medicine specialists, J.C. Clark, M.D., and Suleman Hussain, M.D., have joined ORA Orthopedics and are now available to treat orthopedic and sports-related conditions and injuries at the practice's Iowa and Illinois locations.

Originally from Monmouth, Illinois, Dr. Clark received his medical degree from the University of Iowa before completing his residency at the University of Florida and advancing his education and training through a fellowship program in orthopedic surgery and sports medicine at Steadman Hawkins Clinic of the Carolinas. Dr. Clark will treat sports-related injuries and conditions of the shoulder, elbow and knee at ORA Orthopedics' locations in Moline and Silvis.

A native of Moline, Dr. Hussain attained his medical degree from Loyola University of Chicago before completing advanced training in orthopedic sports medicine through a fellowship training program at the University of California, Los Angeles. Dr. Hussain is available to treat adult and pediatric sports-related injuries as well as conditions of the shoulder, elbow, hip, knee and ankle. Dr. Hussain is available at ORA Orthopedics' locations in Bettendorf, Davenport and Muscatine.

ORA Orthopedics is the Quad Cities' largest orthopedic provider. Our 24 expert orthopedists treat all areas of the body including the spine, shoulder and elbow, hand and wrist, hip and knee, and foot and ankle, and offer a wide array of services. ORA Orthopedics proudly serves as the team physicians for local sports teams and several area colleges and high schools, including: Quad Cities River Bandits, Quad City Mallards, St. Ambrose University, Augustana College, and a number of area high schools in the Quad Cities. ORA Orthopedics' specialists are available at two main locations in Bettendorf and Moline, four other Iowa locations – in Davenport, Muscatine, Dewitt and Durant, and two other Illinois locations – in Silvis and Geneseo. To schedule an appointment please call (563) 322-0971, or for additional information please visit www.qcora.com.
